Legendary Sports Prints Announces Word Art Offerings Artist Daniel Duffy To Be Featured in New Poster Line

New York – October 5, 2009 - Legendary Sports Prints, a leading publisher of fine art, is proud to announce that it will be exclusively marketing the artwork of Daniel Duffy. Daniel's unique form of "word art" actually creates a visual image strictly through the use of words. His painstaking and detail oriented style utilizes text from various subject matters. LSP will be offering his artwork in the form of an affordable poster. Originals of the artwork are also available.

Daniel Duffy is making a grand entrance to the world of art after spending considerable time perfecting his craft of taking topical text, or words, and creating a visual image from it. All of his work is done by hand with precision detail. Daniel, a graduate of Hussian School of Art, has produced artwork, illustrations, advertisements and web designs for companies including Golf World Magazine, Golf Digest, Fisher Price, ESPN, and The PGA of America.

"We at Legendary Sports Prints are excited with the opportunity to market Daniel Duffy's unique style of artwork," said Mr. Vincent Furfaro, LSP's CEO. "Seeing his skill of combining letters and words with his vision of a graphical image, all by hand, is sure to result in a promising art career," Mr. Furfaro added.

The initial images available for sale are a "World Champion Phillies" poster detailing each of the Philadelphia Phillies games played during their 2008 Championship year, a "Phillies Play-By-Play" poster taking a rare look at the Phillies sportscaster Harry Kalas' game expressions, and an "Obama" poster, using the text of his inaugural address. Additional images will be released in the coming months.

Legendary Sports Prints will offer Daniel Duffy's artwork through its extensive dealer network. The artwork can be seen at LSP's website at www.sportslithographs.com. The initial suggested selling price for the unframed prints is expected to be $25.00.
